Cheyenne Frontier Days

Wild Horse & Burro Adoption

July 21-29, 2017

Western Experience at Cheyenne Frontier Days
Cheyenne, Wyoming

• July 21 - 27, 2017

10 am - noon and 4 - 6 pm - Daily training demonstrations

• July 28, 2017

4 - 5 pm - Preview wild horses and burros

5 pm - Live auction and bidding; approved adopters only

• July 29, 2017

7 am - 3 pm - Get to know your new horse or burro, and load out

The twenty wild horses/burros will be halter/saddle-started at the Mantle Wild Horse Adoption and Training Facility.

Due to traffic congestion at the Frontier Park and for the safety of the adopted wild horses and burros, loading and shipping will take place on July 29, 2017 from 7am to noon. BLM can make arrangements with out-of-state adopters to pick up animals at a later date at Mantle Wild Horse Adoption and Training Facility in Wheatland, Wyoming.

BLM Wild Horse and Burro Program information booth will be open daily from 9 am - 7 pm.

Any horses that are not adopted during the event will be available for adoption, by appointment, at the Mantle Wild Horse Adoption and Training Facility. For more information about the BLM adoptions during Cheyenne Frontier Days, please contact BLM Wild Horse Specialist June Wendlandt at 307-690-9069 or email jwendlan@blm.gov. Also, visit the website at www.blm.gov/programs/wild-horse-and-burro. Payments can be made by cash, credit, or check.

The Mantle Family

The Mantle Family has been training and gentling wild horses for the BLM in Wheatland, Wyoming since 1998. Mantle Ranch cares for approximately 200 head of mixed-age and gender of horses.

The Mantle Ranch is a family based business consisting of Steve Mantle; Bryan Mantle and Katie Sherman; and Nick Mantle and his wife Kayla. Steve started working with wild horses in the 1980's and both Bryan and Nick have 18 years of continuous time working in the family business with the wild horses and BLM.

Their operation currently uses the Internet to place over 50% of the adopted horses. The facility offers on-site, and in-person adoptions by appointment. Their training methods involve simple safety, patience, and consistency as the top priority. They spend time observing the horses behavior and then develop a training plan for each horse based on each one's specific needs.

Madison Shambaugh

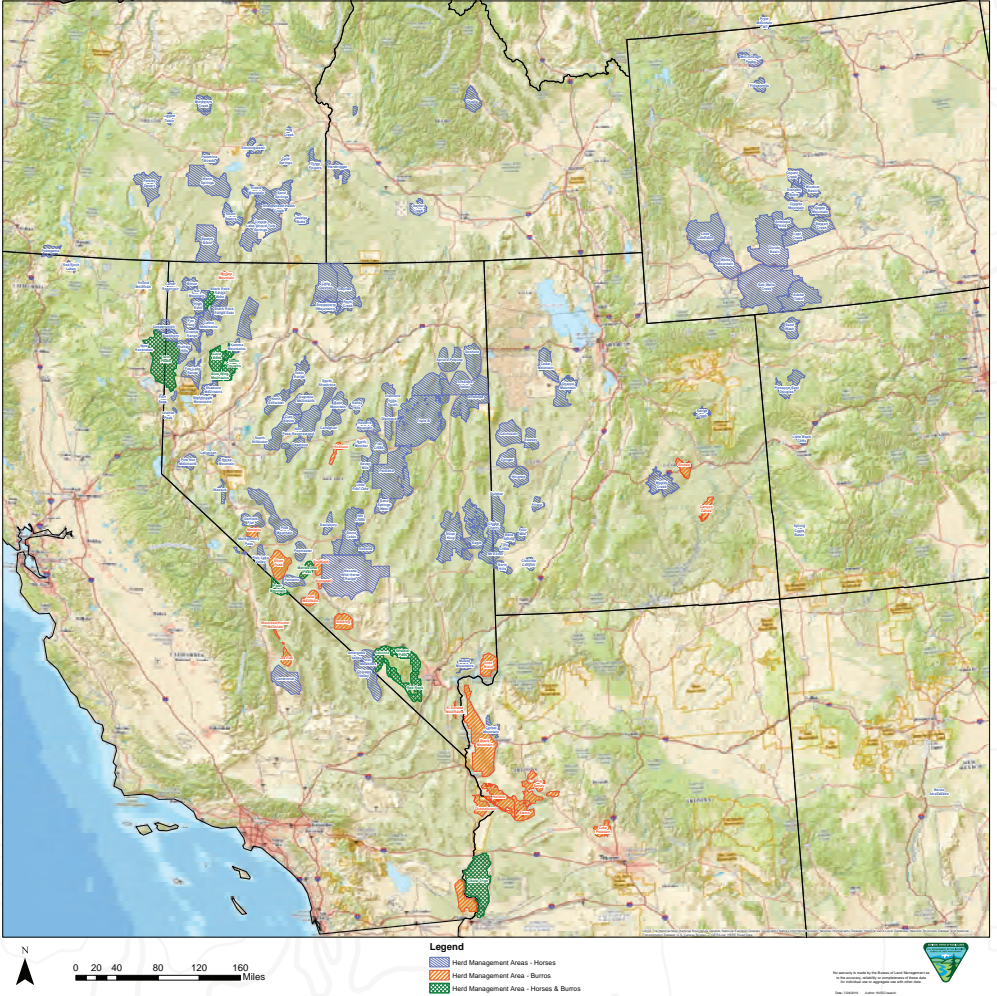

A lifelong equestrienne, Madison Shambaugh's world was rocked when she encountered her first mustang in 2013. Captivated by their heart, mind and innate freedom, "Mustang Maddy" has made it her life's mission to promote and showcase the mustang while raising awareness for the plight of America's wild horses.

Together with her liberty team of formerly wild mustangs—and accompanied by a unique herd of zebras—Madison travels the country to share her training methods and advocate for wild horses. As a clinician, Madison crisscrosses the country to educate horsemen and women about her "Five Golden Rules" that shape her interaction and training with horses of all kinds. Using Madison's method, horse lovers can enjoy stronger relationships with their horses for recreation and performance.

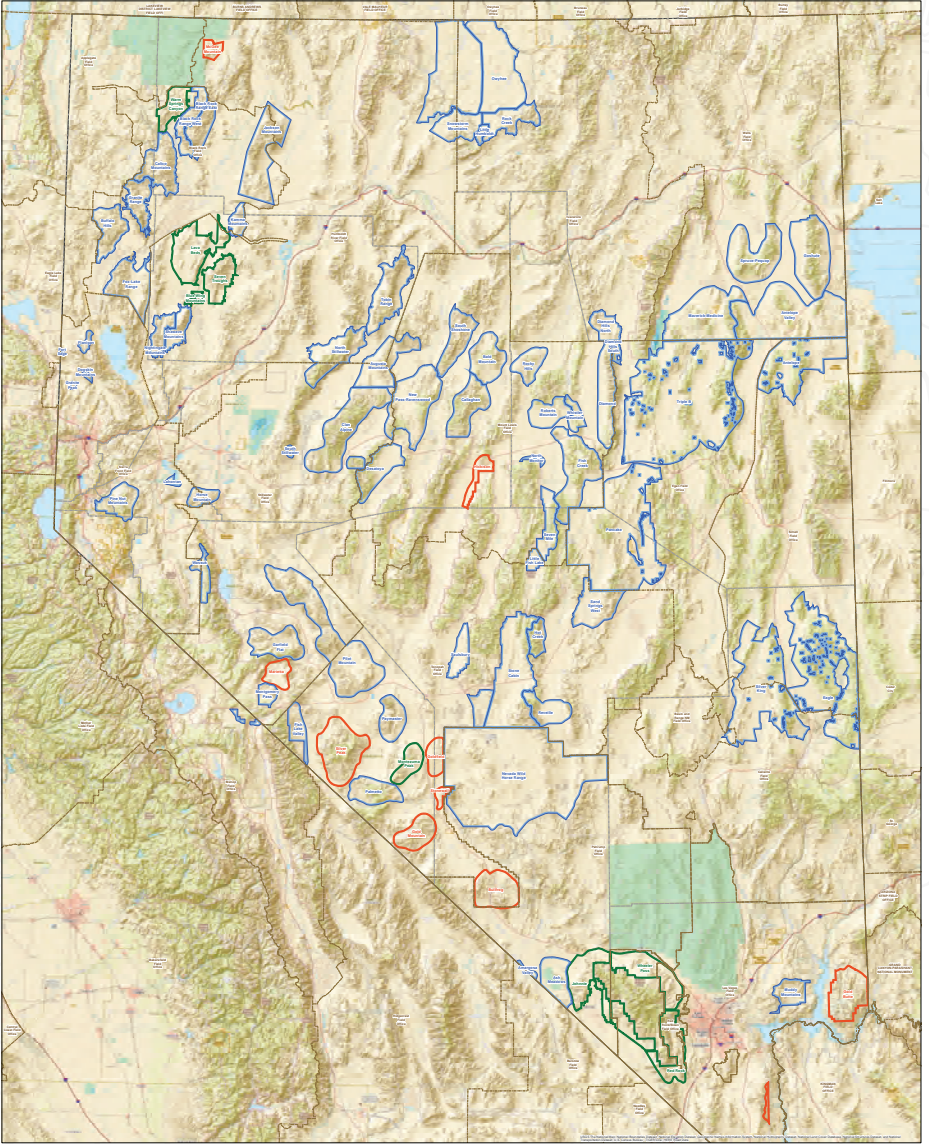

Wherever she goes, Madison's message rings true: every horse has a potential for greatness; it is up to us to help them reveal it. Learn more about Madison at www.mustangmaddy.com, or on Facebook at www.facebook.com/MadisonShambaugh.
