Welcome to Canyon Country!

If you like to camp, hike, climb, raft, bike, four-wheel, or attend outdoor events, Moab's Bureau of Land Management (BLM) public lands are the right place for you.

Located in the heart of the Colorado Plateau and carved by the Green and Colorado rivers, the BLM Moab Field Office manages 1.8 million acres of spectacular scenery. You will find a vast array of arches, spires, canyons, cliffs and mesas. Recreation opportunities draw three million visitors a year to this unique desert landscape.

BLM-managed public lands support multiple uses such as oil and gas production, livestock grazing, mining, and projects to improve wildlife habitat. The agency strives to manage and conserve public lands for future generations, but we need your help!

This visitor guide will help you be prepared and know how to recreate responsibly while visiting your public lands.

Camping Tips

Want to camp like a pro?

Leave something of no value in your campsite while you are away to show it is occupied.

Keep a clean camp. Do not leave trash or food out. Birds and rodents will gain access to food and make a mess.

Be a good neighbor. Noise carries. Be mindful of how much noise you make and follow quiet hours.

Protect the night sky. Limit the use of bright lights. Many people come to Moab to view the night sky.

Fire Safety

Never leave a campfire unattended! Extinguish your campfire properly every time.

1. Dump water on the fire.
2. Stir the ashes with a shovel.
3. Dump more water on the fire.
4. If it is warm to the touch, then it is too hot to leave.

It is your responsibility to know the current fire restrictions and follow restriction orders.

Human Waste on Public Lands

Portable toilet systems are required for public land users throughout Grand County if no toilet is available.

Do not dispose of human waste bags in BLM dumpsters. Take human waste bags to the Moab Transfer Station located at 2295 S. Hwy 191 during business hours.

Portable toilet systems such as groovers can be cleaned at various locations in Moab. For more approved disposal sites, scan this QR code:

BLM Dispersed Camping and Designated Backcountry Camping

Due to high visitation, many areas near developed campgrounds and the city of Moab are closed to dispersed camping. See map for more details.

What is a designated backcountry campsite? These sites are marked with a tent symbol on a brown post. Camping activities must remain in the boundaries of a marked site within the designated site zone.

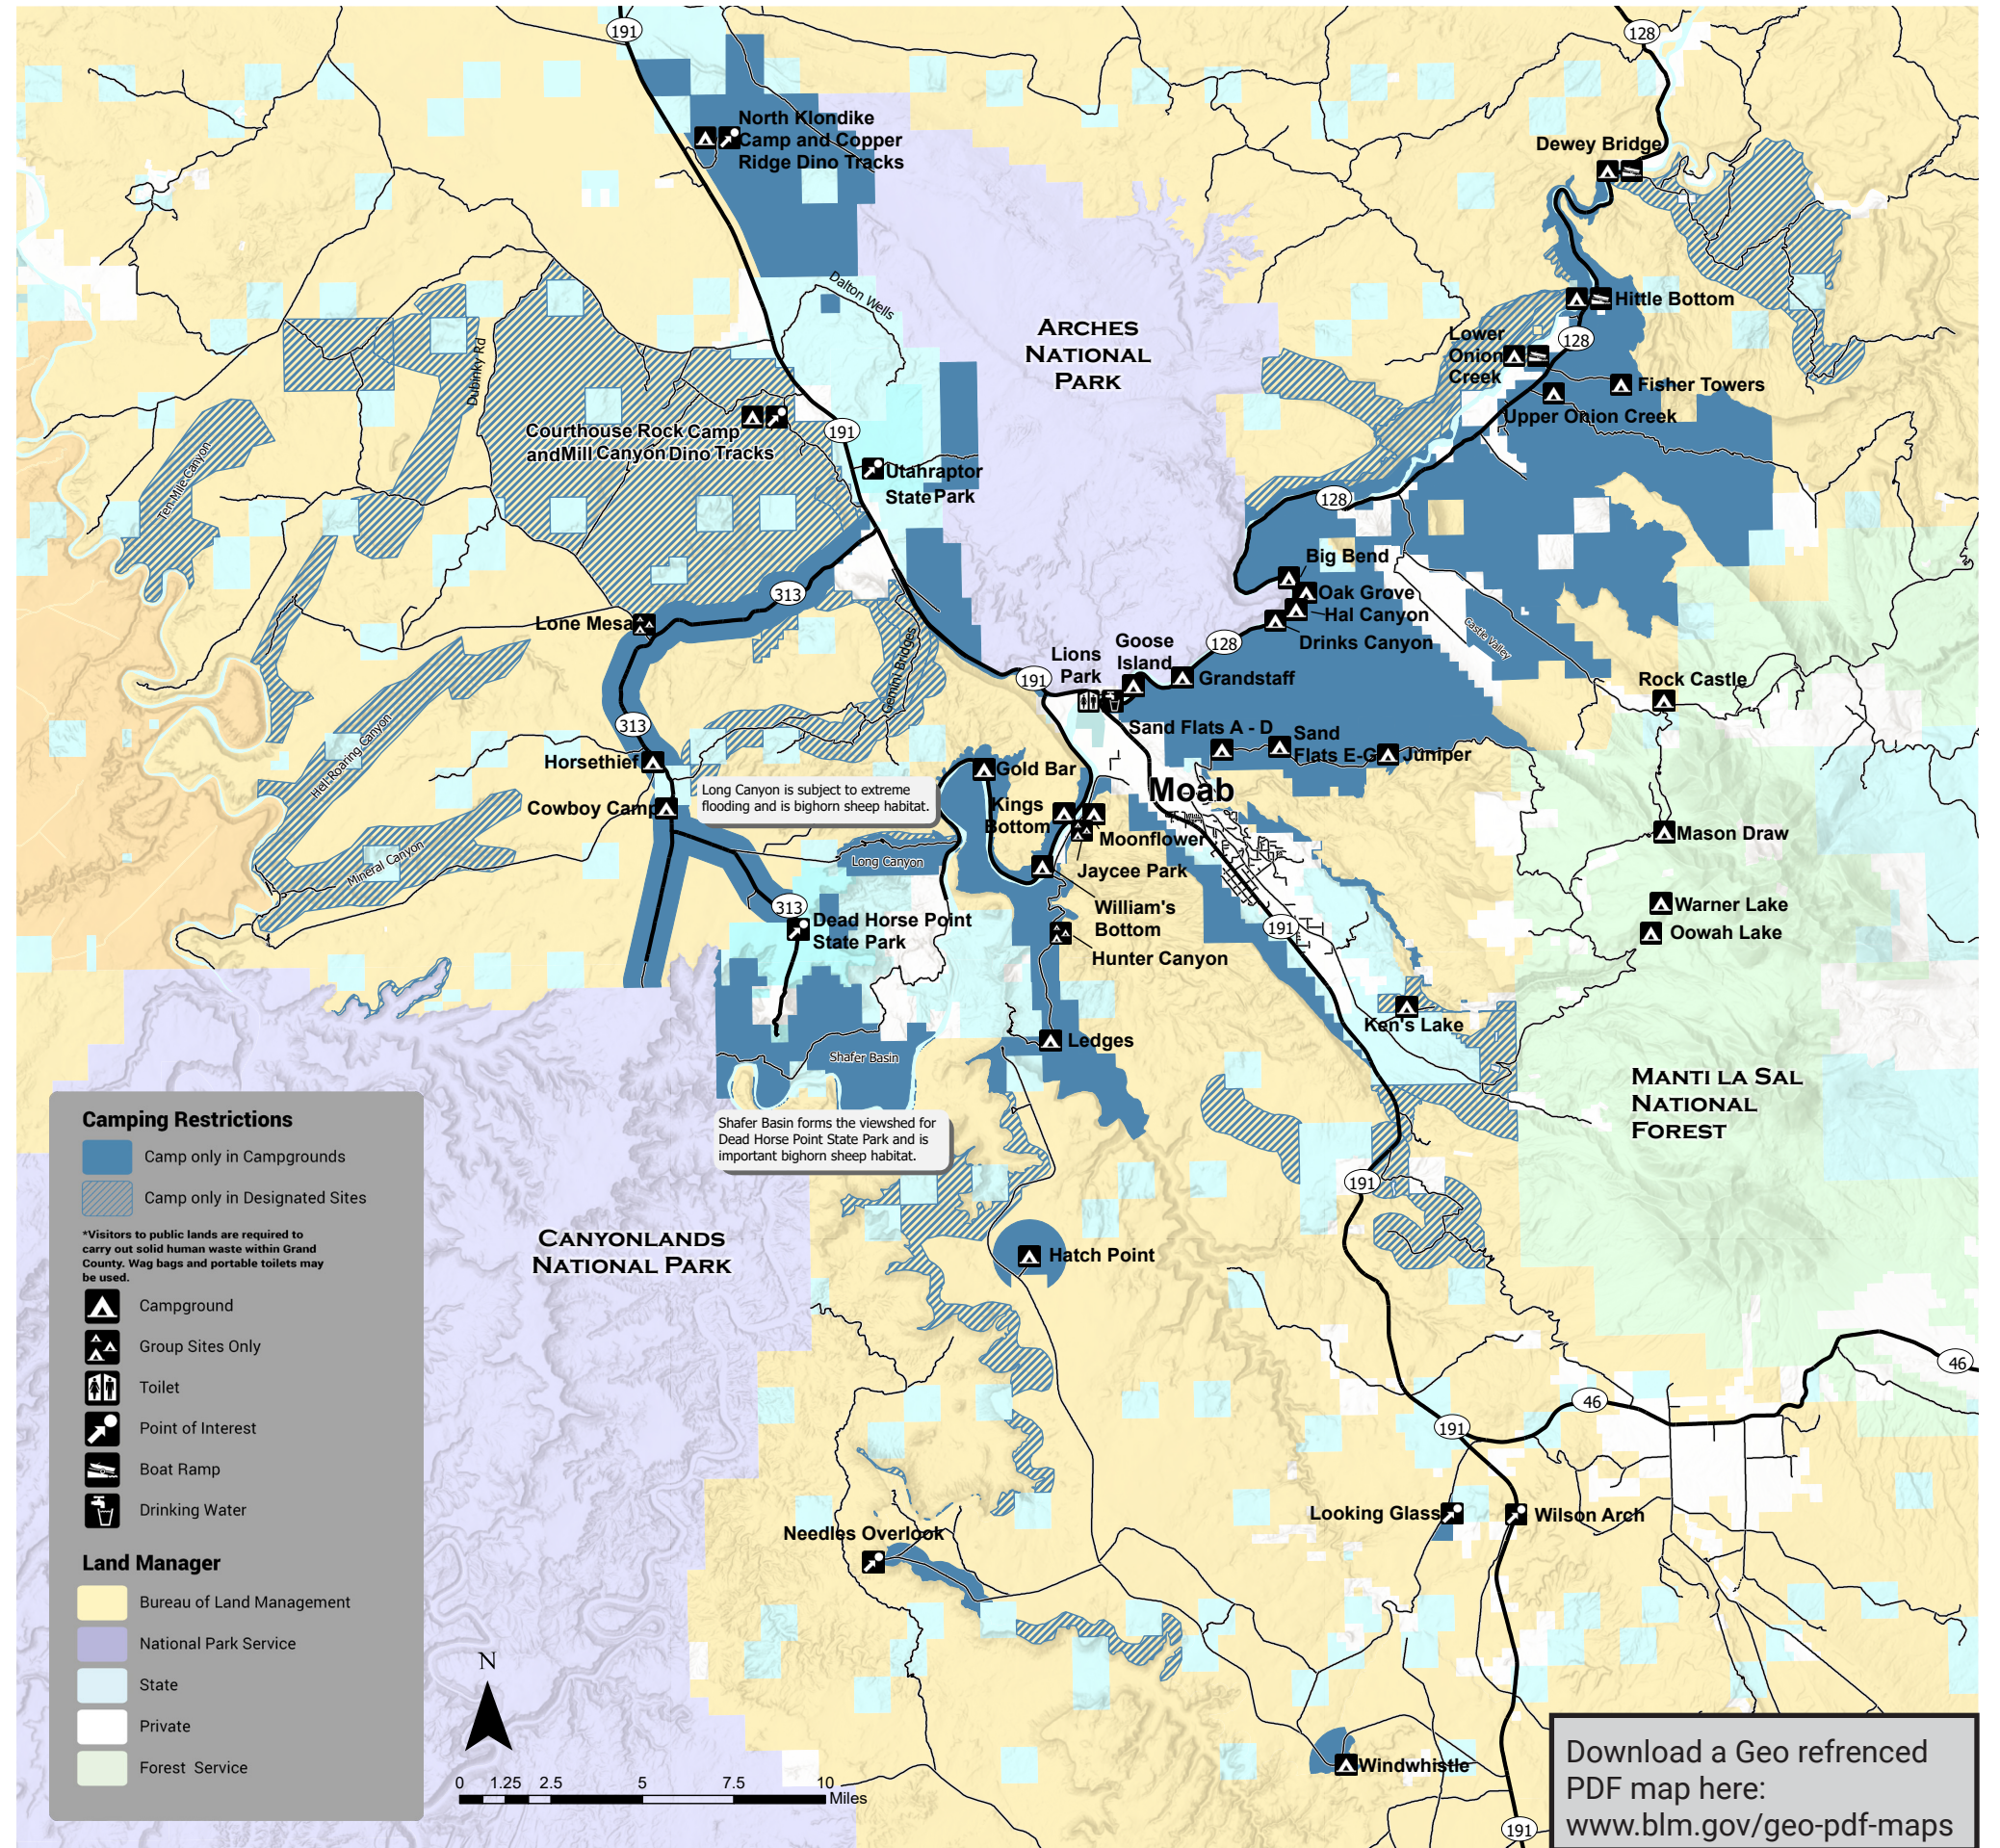

Designated Dispersed

Dispersed camping is allowed in areas that have been previously disturbed by camping activities and that lie outside of a camp-only-in-campground zone or designated backcountry zone (see map). Maintain a low impact by choosing hard rock surfaces and do not expand on or create new dispersed camp sites. Some sites may not be large enough to accommodate multiple campers. Avoid disturbing areas with biological soil crusts or vegetation.

Dispersed

Do your part: Pack out all trash including human waste. A portable toilet system, or human waste disposal bag, is required for all dispersed camping. For more information, see 'Human Waste on Public Lands' above.

Enjoy Local Hiking Trails

- Bring plenty of water and salty snacks.
- Always walk on trails or durable surfaces to avoid stepping on biological soil crust.
- Pets must be picked up after and leashed or under voice command at all times.
- During summer months, hike in the morning or evening to avoid the hottest time of the day.
- If trailhead parking is full, choose an alternate location or come back later.
- Dog friendly trails are marked with

Pet Safety

Desert heat is deadly for dogs. Always carry water for your pets and never leave them in a hot car.

Hot trail surfaces can burn a dog's paws. If you can't comfortably leave your hand on the surface, then it is too hot for a dog's paws.

Remember to pick up after you pet and have them leashed or under voice command at all times.

Graffiti

Do not mark rocks or deface cultural sites. Chalk, charcoal, and scratches cause irreversible damage. Vandalizing natural and cultural features is a crime punishable by fines and jail time.

Do not attempt to remove graffiti. Record the location, take photos, and report it to the BLM Field Office at 435-259-2131 or email us at blm_ut_mb_mail@blm.gov.

Rock Stacking

The stacks of rocks you see on the trail are called rock cairns. They are built by rangers and used to mark the trail to help hikers stay on the trail.

Please do not build your own cairns or add to rock gardens. Altering the natural landscape diminishes the visitor experience and is considered a form of defacement. Visitors have gotten lost, injured, and died due to following false rock cairns.
